

GROOMING YOUR DOG

Grooming is an important part of responsible dog ownership. When you groom a dog you are brushing, combing or trimming its coat to improve its appearance. Grooming is also important to keep a dog's coat healthy.

Purebred dogs have a variety of coats — long, short, double, broken and wire. Dogs can also have straight, wavy or curly hair. This activity sheet will illustrate the different ways to groom two coat types — double and short.

Dog owners use a variety of different grooming supplies to make each coat type look its best.

A pin brush has long, round-ended pins. These types of brushes are used on breeds with long hair, such as a Irish Setter.

Dog owners use a rubber currycomb to massage the skin of shorthaired breeds, such as the Beagle. A rubber currycomb is round with short teeth. A slicker brush usually has a wide base and metal bristles. The bristles are bent at an angle so the brush can slide easily through or over a dog's coat. This brush is used to remove mats from double-coated breeds, such as the Rough Collie. It is also used on shorthaired breeds, such as the Pug, to remove loose hair.

Dog owners also use metal or plastic combs to groom their dogs. You can use a comb on almost any coat type.

Look at the pictures below and circle which grooming tools would best suit that dog. The questions have more than one right answer.

The Siberian Husky has a double coat made up of a long outercoat and a short undercoat.

Answers

1. Slicker brush and/or pin brush. A double-coated dog's hair is too thick for a rubber currycomb to work well. The currycomb may tangle and break the hair. 2. Rubber currycomb and/or a slicker brush. A pin brush's bristles are too long to be effective on most shorthaired breeds.
